

MAKING EXHIBITS

Educational Displays to Be Made at Lewis and Clark Fair.

GRADUATING CLASSES ATTEND

The Making of Exhibits of This Kind Has Been the Means of the Establishment of Many Institutions of Learning Throughout the World.

Various cities in the Pacific northwest are arranging to send the graduating classes of their high schools to the Lewis and Clark exposition, opening in Portland June 1. Thus is the value of an international exposition as an adjunct to education recognized. The graduates will be afforded an excellent opportunity, not only to study the educational work of other states and foreign countries, but to see the products of civilization the world over and to observe the customs and habits of life of many races that will be represented at the fair.

Relative to the educational exhibits of an exposition its chief value is in the opportunity offered for comparisons. A brief review of previous enterprises of a character similar to the Lewis and Clark centennial shows conclusively that the educational displays were productive of results that exceeded the most sanguine expectations of their promoters. The establishment of the school for industrial art at the South Kensington Museum was the result of the Crystal palace exhibition in London in 1851. The educational exhibition at the centennial exposition in 1876 led to the introduction of manual training into the public schools of this country—the institution of shopwork as a part of the curriculum of technical schools which has rendered possible the marvelous advance of the United States in arts and crafts. The reorganization of primary education in France following the Paris exposition of 1878; the rapid growth of manual training and industrial art instruction as a result of the impetus given by the Chicago world's fair in 1893 and the action of the French government in arranging to send students annually to this country for the study and investigation of our industrial and commercial methods as a result of the United States educational display at the Paris exposition of 1900. These results prove that the influences of an international exposition are not to be underestimated.

It is not to be expected that every exposition will mark a noticeable change in educational methods, even in one department, but no one can anticipate the results of its influence.

Aside from the educational features of the Lewis and Clark exposition, the visiting students will find much to supplement their high school gleanings in the displays of foreign countries in particular, inasmuch as these displays will be very instructive and will serve to bring the students in touch with nations, peoples and customs of which they have read.

The proposal of cities and smaller communities in the Pacific northwest to send their high school graduates to the exposition is most commendable, and the example might well be emulated by every section that has a college, an academy or a high school. Hearty co-operation of the railroad companies in extending special rates for such excursions is assured.

Upon their arrival at the exposition the high school students will find the officials of the centennial excellent hosts. Every effort will be made to make the stay of these young visitors a pleasant one and they will be extended numerous courtesies which will enable them to see the exposition to their best advantage.

ASTORIA A PARADISE

Eastern People Invited to Visit Oregon's Seaport City.

EXCURSIONS WILL BE GIVEN

Astoria and Clatsop County Will Have to Depend Upon the Local Newspapers to Advertise Its Resources and Great Natural Advantages.

Astoria has all the requisites to be made into a veritable Garden of Eden. It has the most salubrious climate of any city on the coast. Roses will bloom out in the yards every month in the year, if people will only plant them. It could be made a city of roses with very little effort. Nature has endowed Astoria with peculiar advantages that do not exist in any other city. All that is required to make it the most beautiful city of its size on the Pacific coast is a little exertion on the part of the women and school children. There is no use talking to the men on the subject, as they are so engrossed in business and politics that they do not even have time to stude up a patch of ground large enough for their wives to plant flowers.

Astoria is progressing more rapidly during the past two or three years than in any preceding ten years. Eastern people are beginning to realize that the city and county afford unequalled advantages, not only as a residence place, but a place for investment. The population has increased from 3381 in 1900 according to the United States census, to 14,000 in 1905, and new people are coming in every day. Aside from what advertising it has received through the columns of the Astorian, no effort has been made to prepare or circulate literature, except the annual pamphlet issued by the Astoria & Columbia River Railroad Company. The descriptive articles published in the Astorian during the past four months have brought more new people to Astoria than all the tracts issued by any commercial organization.

Situated near the mouth of the grand old Columbia river, sheltered by the foothills on the south that divide the city from the productive Nehalem valley, nestled on a peninsula where the ebb and flow of the tides carry off all germs of disease; warmed in the winter from the southern winds and the Japan current; cooled in the summer by the invigorating sea breezes, it possesses the most equal temperature of any city on the coast. The ground never freezes, and vegetables and small garden truck grow in abundance every week in the year, partially supplying the home market where it meets with a ready sale and good prices.

There is not a city in the world of the same population where there are less deaths from natural causes than Astoria. There is not a city in the world so free from malaria, fevers and contagious diseases nor where nine-tenths of its inhabitants enjoy as good health as in Astoria. It is a veritable health resort, consequently its people are contented and happy.

There is room in its fertile valleys, traversed by mountain streams of pure water; on its hillside slopes for fruits and gardens; on its vast mountain sides and forests for raising of stock; on its tide lands for dairy products, and in the city for all kinds of business, affording room for thousands of enterprising, thrifty farmers, and dairymen, and progressive merchants. The population of Astoria has increased much faster than its mercantile houses and no city in Oregon or on the Pacific coast affords such splendid inducements for the investment of capital in any line of business. Astoria needs more enterprising, progressive merchants that believe in contributing to the support of its newspapers as a matter of business, rather than an act of charity.

All of these great natural advantages must be seen to be appreciated and there is no doubt that out of the thousands of home seekers and investors that will visit Astoria this summer, many of them can be induced to locate here. All that is required is a little effort on the part of the people. The city should be made attractive. The homes should be made beautiful and inviting, for nothing adds so much toward the forming of a good impression of a city as comfortable looking homes, beautiful yards and lawns, interspersed with nature's flowers and shrubbery. The civic improvement league of Astoria is interesting itself along these lines, and when the school children are interested, a wonderful change over the appearance of Astoria is inevitable. Is this not worth working for? Will not the benefits produced be worth more than the few hours devoted to ornamentation and cleanliness? A great future is in store for Astoria.

When it is considered that there are more houses in course of construction and in contemplation in Astoria this year than in any other year of its history, and that there is not a vacant house in the city, it is evidence of its growth and prosperity. It is an inducement for capitalists and home-seekers, and with a spirit of progressiveness all these things will be added.

Last Hope Vanished.

When leading physicians said that W. M. Smithart, of Peking, Ia., had incurable consumption, his last hope vanished; but Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds, kept him out of his grave. ## RAILROAD SCHEDULE

Transcontinental Roads Refuse the Request of Jobbers.

FREIGHT RATES NOT CHANGED

After a Session in Portland of the Representatives of the Transcontinental Railroads They Concluded to Take Matter Under Advisement.

Portland, April 5.—The transcontinental railroads will not at present make any readjustment of freight tariff rates between coast points and the interior. This is in substance the decision made known to a representative of the jobbing interests of Portland, Seattle and Tacoma today by the traffic managers of the Harriman lines, Northern Pacific and Great Northern railroads.

Three months ago the jobbers of the three coast cities arranged for a meeting with the traffic managers for the purpose of protesting against the existing freight rates between the coast and the interior, which, they contended, prevented their entering into competition for the trade of eastern Washington, northern Oregon and northern Idaho. At that meeting they presented arguments and the traffic managers announced that they would take the matter under advisement and return in three months and make known their decision.

CUTICURA

Soap, Ointment and Pills the World's Greatest Skin Cures.

PRICE THE SET $1

Complete Treatment for Every Humour, from Pimples to Scrofula.

The agonizing itching and burning of the skin, as in eczema; the frightful scaling, as in psoriasis; the loss of hair and crusting of the scalp, as in scalded head; the facial disfigurement, as in pimples and ringworm; the awful suffering of infants and the anxiety of worn-out parents, as in milk crust, tetter and salt rheum, all demand a remedy of almost superhuman virtues to successfully cope with them. That Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills are such stands proven beyond all doubt. No statement is made regarding them that is not justified by the strongest evidence. The purity and sweetness, the power to afford immediate relief, the certainty of speedy and permanent cure, the absolute safety and great economy, have made them the standard skin cures and humor remedies of the civilized world.

The grandest testimonial that can be offered the Cuticura remedies is their world-wide sale, due to the personal recommendations of those who have used them. From a small beginning in the simplest form, against prejudice and opposition, against monied hosts, countless rivals, and trade indifference, Cuticura remedies have become the greatest curatives of their time, and, in fact, of all time, for nowhere in the history of medicine is to be found another approaching them in popularity and sale. In every clime and with every people they have met with the same reception. The confines of the earth are the only limits to their growth. They have conquered the world.
